

C1 63. (Amended) A method for delivery of a hydrophobic drug to a selected site in a patient comprising:

(a) administering to said patient a composition comprising a micellar drug carrier comprising a hydrophobic core and an effective amount of said hydrophobic drug disposed in said hydrophobic core, wherein said micellar drug carrier is an AB-diblock copolymer; and

(b) applying ultrasonic energy to said selected site such that said hydrophobic drug is released from said hydrophobic core to said selected site.

C2 66. (Amended) The method of claim 63 wherein said hydrophobic drug is an anthracycline.

C3 74. (Amended) A method for enhancing uptake of a hydrophobic drug by cells at a selected site in a patient comprising:

(a) administering to said patient a composition comprising a micellar drug carrier comprising a hydrophobic core and an effective amount of said hydrophobic drug disposed in said hydrophobic core, wherein said micellar drug carrier is an AB-diblock copolymer; and

c 5 80. (Amended) A method for reducing side effects in a patient from administration of a hydrophobic drug comprising:

(a) administering to said patient a composition comprising a micellar drug carrier comprising a hydrophobic core and an effective amount of said hydrophobic drug disposed in said hydrophobic core, wherein said micellar drug carrier is an AB-diblock copolymer; and

(b) applying ultrasonic energy to said patient such that said hydrophobic drug is released from said hydrophobic core.

c 6 83. (Amended) The method of claim 80 wherein said hydrophobic drug is an anthracycline.
